WEATHER FORECAST.

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY.

William Allen White of Kansas fame, contributes an article to the Saturday Evening Post on the future of the progressive party. Mr. White was defeated for governor in the progressive ticket. He held the Chicago convention with Colonel Roosevelt, two years ago, and has been a progressive leader ever since.

He is a racy writer, and his story of party defeat is in humorous vein, and well worth reading. He claims that the party was no sure of victory, on the eve of election, that every thing was considered done but the shouting, and the stamp of 3,000,000 votes came to them as a great surprise. His definition of what is left of the party is not exactly "talk sticking," but it amounts to that, as he claims that it is the strongest in the towns and small cities of the west and includes reformers of every hue. The comfort which comes to him in defeat is in the claim that both of the old parties have absorbed the progressive idea and stolen the party's thunder, so that the country will be benefited, while the movement of the progressive organization will be content to sit on the fence and act as a balance wheel. Mr. White should have lived long enough to discover that a defeated party is a good deal like a sore thumb on exhibition. The party expired through lack of votes, and the shortage was so pronounced that it will be difficult to resurrect. There has always been room in this country for two great parties, but never room for three.

The national progressive party was born in the brain of the man who dubbed it the "Bull Moose" party. The success attained was due to his personal popularity, but the great leader was not strong enough to secure the coveted seat in the white house, and as his popularity waned the party suffered, and is now ready for the final obsequies.

The great promoter has read the handwriting on the wall and has recently closed a three years' contract with the Metropolitan magazine—of marketing, notably—as a regular contributor.

The colonel was sharp enough to stay away from the progressive love feast, held in Chicago, not long ago, where the question discussed was whether or not the party should continue to maintain an organization. He declined the invitation to be present on the ground that he would be called upon to decide the question, and he did not care to assume the responsibility.

And Colonel Roosevelt went back to the republican party—where he belonged—on his return from Africa, there would have been no progressive campaign in 1914, and without his inspiring personality the outlook for 1916 is not very hopeful. Mr. White and his distinguished followers are responsible for the present democratic administration. When they get enough of it, as the country has already done, they may feel disposed to return to the fold.

THE RATE DECISION.

Taking everything into consideration, the railroads have reason to feel satisfied with the outcome of the rehearing of the eastern rate case. As a consequence the reports from financial circles show a revival of business all along the line. The big railroads are planning for extension. This means more rails, more equipment, employment of thousands of men in allied trades, work for section hands and untold idle contingents, and a general resumption of business.

The relief allowed will amount in annual revenues to considerably less than $50,000,000, which had been asked for, possibly to not more than $20,000,000 or $25,000,000, which is unquestionably less than the railroads concerned need in the interest of good public service and sound finance.

And the Wall Street Journal, says the rate is at least a start toward a candid and unprejudiced adjustment of the relation between rates and the cost of producing transportation.

It is for the railroads, applying this small amount of their revenues to only the most necessary ends, with all regard for the economy they have lately been and will still be compelled to practice, to proceed at once to do everything in their power to help themselves in the way the commission has pointed out, and in other ways which they can devise for themselves.

It is more than likely that, as the eastern managers contend, relief to be obtained by such methods will prove inadequate in itself. It may even prove insufficient to make up, together with the rate advances now allowed, such net revenues as are demanded in the public interest. But it is imperative to real and permanent progress toward a solution of the railroad problem that the railroads give all of the attention made by the commission a fair trial.

In some respects the commission has disappointed its enemies, and has achieved a victory for government regulation of interstate carriers. It refused the advice of its special counsel, wisely to narrow the scope of its duties by refusing to recognize the tremendous influence of the war upon the conditions under which American railroads do business. It refused, in other words, to take refuge behind technicalities in order to avoid accounting to reverse its original decision.

It avoided also the pitfall of Clifford Thorne's arguments in favor of theoretically compelling the railroads to pay dividends out of accumulated surplus, which, because the surplus is already invested in permanent facilities, would have meant wholesale reduction of dividends. Finally, it refused to increase the famous notion that railroads managers delight in, and their maintenance men even, openly before the commission's eyes, in order to convey the commission of their need of higher rates.

No one need imagine that this decalation disposes of the grave problem that railroad credit has so long presented. It only demonstrates that a real solution of the problem is not impossible. It will give railroad managers a breathing spell in which to find their bearings.

Berlin rejoices over a decisive victory over the Rums. Petrograd denounces the victory. Vienna reports the Rums are driven back across the mountains. The followers of the great czar say the Austrians are being plain by thousands. Serbia reports that not an Austrian remains on the sacred soil of Serbia. Austria reports the sweeping victories over the subjects of King Peter. So goes the war in the east. Of the western stage we know but little more as the reports are equally conflicting. However, it is safe to assume that the war is still going on with no diminished zeal.

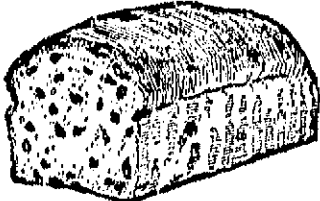

There will be fewer "bear's heads" and less of the great roost of the "Roof of Old England" found on the tables of the residents of the English Isles this Christmas than over before. With Tommy Atkins fighting across the water the holiday season will not be as gay as in past years when one stops to consider that this year "Tommy Atkins" represents the best that England has to give to the war effort. In England, too, the Christmas holiday will be more as this part of the English empire has sent thousands of its sons to fight for the flag of St. George.

This Mexican trouble does not appear to be settled by a long way and meanwhile the citizens of an American border town are forced to seek shelter from rebel bullets fired across the border by Mexicans who laugh and jeer when told to stop. It is not yet a hundred years ago since old "Rough and Ready" Taylor went across that border with a band of determined men and taught the "greasers" how to respect the stars and stripes.

This is the time of the year the demand on the pocketbook far exceeds the contents, particularly when the first of the year is so near at hand with all the additional bills to meet all in a bulk. However, it comes over-new skates to enjoy their holidays? It would not cost much and think of the pleasure it would give to the younger generation.

One would almost believe that the Turks had invaded the United States and commanded all the turkeys from the price the butchers ask us to pay for them, and the price the butchers themselves have to pay. Well, at any rate the goose is the orthodox Christmas fowl anyway.

One hundred years ago this month the treaty of Ghent was signed between England and the United States. Of course the battle of New Orleans was fought later, after the treaty was signed, but peace had actually begun before the old year had ever there in Belgium where the lapse of a single century sees a ruthless war being waged as the new year is about to be ushered in.

Europe will want lots of American grains during the next twelve months so the average American farmer with a look into the future will plant his crops accordingly. Already the demand for rye flour is far in excess of the crop and it is only a question of whether the present supply will hold out until the new grain ripens.

Have you thought over that plan for establishing skating places about the city where it will be safe and pleasant for the boys and girls with

Some way or other the more one reads of the petty disagreements down at the belief that there is something like discord in the ranks of the experimental democrats who are not quite satisfied with the Wilson administration after all.

Regina Pneumatic Sweepers for Xmas Gifts

Please the Heart of Any Housewife

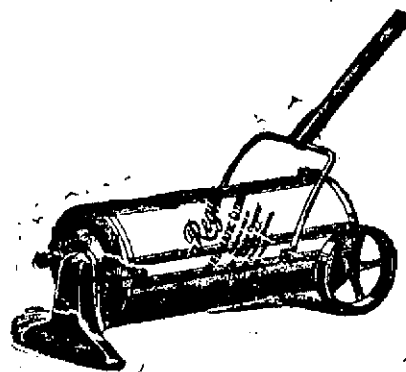

The Regina Pneumatic Sweeper is as easy to handle as an ordinary carpet sweeper, but vastly more efficient. It cleans by suction, gets not only the surface dirt, but also the fine dust imbedded in the fabric and collects this dust in a bag instead of scattering it.

Best of all it costs so little that it is within the means of any Christmas shopper.

Women like them because they are dainty. Men, because of their warmth and handiness. Children, for these same reasons and, also, because we have so many new designs that please them.

"COMFY SLIPPERS" are so welcomed—yet so modestly priced—that you can't go wrong in giving a pair to each and all of your friends this Xmas.

offers many suggestions to the Xmas shoppers, especially to those who don't feel as if they can afford the time and the waste of energy, by visiting so many different stores for the purchasing of different articles.

The People's Department Store is a new store, but the proprietors are not; they have been dealing with the public in and around Janesville for the past six or seven years. A "square Deal" to everybody is the motto of the firm and on this principle we shall operate and continue to operate the store for the people.

Visit our Grocery department and there you will find many things that will appeal to you as a Xmas suggestion.

Flannel Shirts and Men's Sweaters make very appropriate Xmas gifts. There are many articles in our Men's Furnishings department that are worth looking over.

Don't forget that Thursday afternoon we will demonstrate our 30c Special Blend Coffee and we would like to have you come and give us your opinion on its quality.

IS JANESVILLE TO BE THE DIVISION END?

RUMORS AT NORTHWESTERN YARDS THAT GALENA AND MADISON DIVISIONS WILL END HERE.

BIG BENEFIT TO CITY

Would Bring Hundred Families to the City to Make Their Homes and Increase Business in Local Yards.

Rumors are current in the North-western yards that the terminal of the Galena and Madison divisions, which now end at Belvidere, are to be transferred to Janesville in the immediate future. This report appears to have originated in Belvidere, but nothing authoritative has been learned of the proposition. However, should it be accomplished, it would mean that Janesville would be the largest point for a large number of people that new to the city.

A rumor that the Northwestern contemplated increasing the passenger and freight yard at Janesville was prevalent during the early fall and it is known that options on several pieces of property adjacent to the yard were secured, but the department of business cannot find this plan to be dropped. However, if the proposed change is really made, it is probable that the teachers in the yards will be increased and facilities made for handling the increased freight which would accompany the change.

Agent Alvin E. Hennings was asked regarding the matter this morning and said he knew nothing of the matter, but that it was not probable that the yard would be increased to such an extent as to make it a permanent home for the city, but that it would be a week or more during each month.

The big yards at South Janesville are well equipped to handle any increase of freight business. Switching facilities are excellent and the tracks are long enough to hold in the freight cars close to 2,000 cars, in addition to this there is the downtown yard.

When the yards were built eight years ago the idea was to take care of an expected large increase in freight business. However, the theory did not materialize to the extent of the road and at the present time the South Janesville yards are much too large to handle efficiently. The amount of business done by the Northwestern company, if however, Janesville is made a new division point, the handling of the long trains in the local yards will be far more easy than at the present.

The work will entail at least two or three men switch engines and crews each day. An increase at the shops may perhaps be necessary also.

SAFETY FIRST

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Vice-President Milwaukee (Alvin E. Hennings) after a controversy of many years, Milwaukee has won the right to succeed the Milwaukee city on a rail road.

In the past it had been the custom of Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad officials to refer to their company as the St. Paul road. Their objection, they continued their objection for many years, and now victory is theirs.

Henceforth, all literature issued by the railroad, except where the full corporate name is used, now bears the title "Milwaukee road." In the case of the new York stock exchange, a compromise was effected. The stock and bonds, which were known as "St. Pauls," will become "Milwaukee & St. Pauls."

There was a great victory.

John C. Fox.

The following short sketch of his life is taken from a letter written by Mr. Fox to the Milwaukee Railway System Employees Association.

I was born in England, July 20, 1827, and came to Milwaukee in the year of 1851, expecting to work for the new Milwaukee & Mississippi Railroad the only line having a good built in Wisconsin at that time.

When I got ready to go to work I announced to him for the railroad and found it a hard job. I was the only one leading to the depot and had been built in through the yards. I found the depot a great deal of rough lumber, which contained a passenger depot, ticket office, waiting room, freight house and engine house. The engine house had two engines and a tender and a fire engine without the tender and which ever an engine was turned, the engine and tender had to be in the engine house.

The headquarters of the road were at Waukesha, to which point the road was completed at that time. The company had a good built of Waukesha (the depot) and it contained the few tools they had for making running repairs.

On October 16, 1851, I commenced to work for the company, holding a position as a section hand. I was given a position for five or six weeks, after which I was promoted to engineer.

On March 1, 1852, I was given a position as a section hand. I was given a position for five or six weeks, after which I was promoted to engineer.

of them, between Janesville and Milton, and did the running repairs on the other. My hard work got along very well and I got no promotion, and then I got a man to take charge of the one I was running. In 1853, I was given charge of the shop at Mineral Point and took care of the Rockford roundhouse. I continued with the work until I was taken ill in 1854, Mr. George Hennings was then appointed to take the place of the one who was taken ill. I was there for three years, and I wish to take advantage of this opportunity to express my appreciation of his loyal and efficient service. He was loyal and efficient to the company and loyal to me in faithfully carrying out the instructions I gave him. It has now been said that "kind words never die."

The Milwaukee Company employs over fifty thousand men, and if they were all loyal and spoke kind words the road would be the most popular of the country. I have been at the head of the present tendency to break railroad legislation. I believe in being loyal. I think I say that I tried to practice loyalty to the railway during my service of over sixty years.

In my opinion, it is one of the most important factors of efficiency and applies from the highest official to the man with a shovel on the track.

Without loyalty no man can render a just equivalent for what he receives from his employers.

C. & W. Ry. Local railway men are awaiting action of the general system committee regarding the proposed of the former's safety committee regarding the facing of the railway right-of-way at North street. The matter was brought up at the last meeting of the Wisconsin division safety committee.

Preparations are all made for the annual dancing party of the Brotherhood of Pioneers and Engineers, to be held on New Year's at Assembly hall.

John Ames, chief painter, welcomed an addition to the family on Sunday. James Cummings and Marie Garbutt, machinists, and Fred Strampe, assistant car foreman, have been named additional members to the Janesville safety committee.

A. M. Havenhill attended on Sunday at Chicago, a meeting of car foremen.

James Wilson has been named as a representative of the Bremen of the Wisconsin division safety committee. The monthly meeting of the Wisconsin division safety committee will be held Dec. 23rd at the division superintendent's office, Chicago.

Machinists Joseph Smith and James Chittenden will leave tomorrow for their homes at Omaha and St. Joseph, Mo., respectively, to spend the holidays.

Seventy-five cars have been dispatched here for repairs.

Embarking of all stock cars have been discontinued. Preparations were being made to do the work at City, Ill., but a second order changed the work to West Chicago.

Engine 689 is at the shops for repairs.

Starkeeper P. H. Hennings was the guest of friends at Rockford on Sunday.

W. H. Wade is acting in the role of Santa Claus at South Janesville. He has created a tree in Stockholder Hennings's office and was engaged yesterday in decorating the henlock. Santa Claus says he is going to buy a supply of the Good's gum drops for the boys.

Frank Martens, assistant storekeeper at Milwaukee, was a guest of local relatives and friends over Sunday.

G. P. Pennafeder, tariff clerk, was a Chicago visitor on Sunday.

Necessary winter alterations are being made at the passenger depot, Janesville.

Engine No. 687, recently overhauled at local shops, will enter service in local yards tomorrow.

Engine 1251 has been taken into the shops for light repairs.

Howard Wade was a Chicago visitor on Sunday and Saturday, greeting old friends and acquaintances.

Engines No. 1120, 1289, 936 and 323 left Janesville yesterday for service on the Ashland division.

William Dwyer, car inspector, is confined to his home on account of illness.

Passenger traffic is reported taking on a decided increase, due to the approaching holidays.
